

U.S.-MEXICO AIR DEFENCE PACT SIGNED

Joint Use Of Air Fields To Be Allowed Under New Agreement

WASHINGTON, April 1.—(AP)—The United States and Mexico today signed a convention providing for reciprocal use of air fields which will permit American military planes to speed to Panama in the shortest possible time.

The convention was signed by Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, and Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican ambassador, in the presence of Mexican and U.S. military experts who formed the committee to draft plan for mutual defense measures for defense of the western hemisphere.

The convention will now be sent to the senate for ratification, and the Mexican Congress for appropriate action.

The agreement, qualified authorities stated, would greatly strengthen aerial defenses of the Panama Canal by making it possible for United States to shift air forces from the Caribbean to the Gulf of Mexico if danger threatened the canal zone.

The new defense compact, officials said, is now ready for formal signing by representatives of the two governments, and will become operative once it has been ratified by the Mexican congress.

Under its terms, United States army and navy planes would be permitted to fly the length of Mexico, utilizing Mexican air fields en route for refueling and repairs.

Since a successful bombing attack on the Panama canal would block the "big ditch" and thereby seriously delay warship movements between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, the signing of the pact was considered a major concern for United States military authorities.

Cuba Takes Over
Italian Vessel
Lying In Harbor

HAVANA, April 1.—(AP)—The government yesterday took over the Italian merchant ship Albatros, which has been in Havana harbor since July entered the water.

The decision announced by President Carlos Salaserra at the press conference was said to be a manifestation of solidarity with the United States government, which has over Axis and German ships in its harbor.

Orders were issued to the navy to post marine guards aboard the Albatros immediately to forestall Axis attempts.

AXIS DEMANDS U.S. RELEASE SEIZED SHIPS

It was his "understanding" no United States ship would be released until the French merchant vessels in American ports were freed, he said.

He said he was given to understand French and other foreign ships in American harbors might, however, be subjected to surveillance.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, returning to the capital from a conference with the president, said that President Franklin D. Roosevelt "made it quite plain" no plan had been worked out for the release of the foreign ships now in federal custody.

"Of course, it would take quite a while to get some of them in shape and to get them ready to be released," he said, "but the president's intention that efforts be made to release them as soon as possible."

NOTIFIED PROMPTLY
Hull said other American governments had been notified promptly after the United States had notified the Axis and Danish ships.

He said he was too early to determine the attitude that all other American governments were taking but the action of the United States already had been followed by some of the American countries.

MENZIES WILL PAY VISIT TO CANADA SOON

Prime Minister Of Australia
Expects To Come
In April

NEW YORK, April 1.—(AP)—Early next month the son of a family storekeeper in the sun-drenched plains of northeastern Australia will visit Ottawa, pay a visit to Canada and the United States.

It will be the continuation of a 25,000-mile journey by Australia's 34-year-old prime minister, Robert Gordon Menzies.

After he gets back to the parliament at Canberra, he will have visited the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, the United States, and the United States.

Since he became head of the Australian government four months ago, Menzies has been busy with moving new members and establishing established arms and munitions plants, and created an aircraft industry.

Italian Losses In Naval Battle May Include 8 Warships, 4 Thousand Men

By LARRY ALLEN

ABOARD H.M.S. WARSPITE AT ALEXANDRIA. Egypt. April 1.—(AP)—Italy lost five and possibly eight warships including probably the crack 35,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto, when the Fascist fleet fell into a British trap Friday west of Crete. British officers said last night upon their return from the epic week-end battle fought mostly at night.

Almost 1,000 Italian officers and men also were killed in the war, they said. There were 200 of these were rescued; 1,000 were believed to have lost their lives.

In high good humor the Mediterranean fleet commander-in-chief, Admiral Andrew Cunningham, declared:

"Not a single British ship was hit by the enemy, and this was one of the most extraordinary actions in naval history."

"We are going to do our best to finish off the Italian navy before the end of the year."

THREE DIRECT HITS

An Italian captain, Manlio Despia, rescued by the destroyer Jervis from his 10,000-ton cruiser Pola before she sank, was quoted by British officers saying that the Vittorio Veneto probably sank before getting back to Taranto.

Despia related that British naval pilots scored at least three direct torpedo hits on the Vittorio Veneto, the largest of the Italian fleet, and that the vessel listed heavily at the stern. Her speed was reduced to 15 knots from a possible 32.

Three Italian cruisers, the Pola, Zara, and Fiume, all 10,000 tons, and two destroyers, the Vincenzo Gioberti, 1,728 tons, and the Maestrale, 1,440 tons, definitely were sunk.

And in addition to the Vittorio Veneto, the officers believed another cruiser and destroyer were lost.

Capt. Despia said the Italian units were en route to attack British convoys operating around the Greek island of Crete when surprised by the British ships, who used the cruiser Orion as a decoy to trap the Italian.

Italian crews aboard the Zara and Pola which were struck by terrific broadsides from 15-inch British guns hung limp, white sheets over the sides of the ships to indicate surrender, the officers said.

JUMPED INTO SEA

Hundreds of Italians were known to have drowned after jumping into the sea because German dive-bombers, precluded British rescuers, they said.

British officers estimated that from one-fourth to one-half of Mussolini's naval striking power now was at the bottom of the sea or out of commission.

Smiling broadly and his blue eyes twinkling, Admiral Cunningham said:

"I don't know whether the Italian ships actually were offed by German in this engagement, but there was no doubt the Germans exerted pressure on Premier Mussolini to send the fleet to sea."

The enemy fleet had not been sighted anywhere in the central Mediterranean since Nov. 11 when the first air arm torpedo bombers originated three of its Duce's sea battleships.

RALSTON HAS EVERY FAITH IN INDUSTRY

Confident Canadian Firm Will Produce Necessary War Material

OTTAWA, April 1.—(CP)—Reputation for efficient military equipment shortages rests upon Canadian industry which is meeting that responsibility, Defence Minister Ralston Monday told the House of Commons.

He said that shortages he mentioned last year were being made up "slowly but surely," and in some instances had been completely satisfied.

"I have every faith in Canadian industry to do the job," he said.

Debate on Canada's war effort resumed yesterday when Finance Minister Fliley moved the necessary resolution for a supplementary war appropriation bill of $133,000,000 ending yesterday.

Small arms ammunition was being sent overseas in "enormous quantities," the minister said, and only enough was being retained largely overseas. Deliveries on one weapons set would start in a few days and requirements would be filled in one month. Delivery of another set would start in May.

TANK EQUIPMENT

Training centres had been sent considerable quantities of commercial telephone equipment adapted to army use, and delivery of field telephone sets now were in substantial numbers.

The department had obtained all the motorcycles it considered necessary, first of English and later of United States manufacture. Motor vehicle units now had been incorporated in the armed forces and the new establishment required fewer motorcycles than the old.

Future requirements would be obtained from the United States.

Col. Ralston said he could add nothing to information already given on tanks except that it was expected when the Canadian armoured formations sent overseas, they would be fully equipped by Canada and British sources. (It has been assumed that the armoured formations are scheduled to go overseas this year.)

Small arms ammunition was being sent overseas in "enormous quantities," the minister said, and only enough was being retained in Canada for training and normal operations purposes.

Gas regulators were being manufactured in the National Research Laboratories in Ottawa at such a rate that in a month there would be enough for all the active army formations in Canada.

High Grade Sterling (Cott, Yale, etc.) was still appearing that there were shortages in equipment and that men in Canadian units at home were "longing for" because of these shortages. But he said he was satisfied efforts were being made to make up the shortages.

CANADA CONSULTED

He asked the minister what plans the Canadian units overseas enjoyed and if they were entirely loyal to the British war effort.

Col. Ralston said that generally speaking the Canadian units overseas were responsible only to the Canadian government for administration, organization and operations.

The commander-in-chief of the Canadian Corps (Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton), always had the right of refusal to the government in Ottawa before the units were sent overseas.

Transfer of Canadian units to Norway and the movement to France, referred to by the minister, were made to the government at Ottawa.

"There has never been a proposal discussed at the war office to use Canadian forces without their consent," the minister said.

Mr. Hanson ran into trouble with Deputy Speaker Van der Meer, charged that Hon. Basil Davidson, government leader in the Senate speaking in that chamber March 27, had made an "ill-considered and ill-timed statement."

Mr. Hanson then referred to statements made by a member of the government to the effect that there had been a failure by British authorities to provide certain blueprints. He asked that the house be advised what blueprints were held up, for how long and by what British authority?

WILL TAKE NOTE

Col. Ralston said he would "take note" of the request.

On the same March 27, Government Leader Davidson said that the British government was "not in sympathy" with the industrialists and after Dunkerque had a "complete" industrialists to send their blueprints to Canada.)

LONDON NAMES OFFICERS FOR OTTAWA POSTS

By HAROLD FAIR

LONDON, April 1.—(CP)—The appointments of Sir Patrick Duff, veteran civil servant, to the newly-created post of deputy high commissioner to Canada and of W. H. Coates as financial adviser to the high commissioner, were announced Monday night by the Dominion office.

The new high commissioner, Malcolm MacDonald, former minister of health and finance, Dominion said, set up in Canada that would be rivals to them in time of peace.

"He said Canada 'begged' for blueprints to make war equipment but the British industrialists were 'reluctant' to send them. He said the British government was 'not in sympathy' with the industrialists and after Dunkerque had a 'complete' industrialists to send their blueprints to Canada.)

istry, is expected to take office in Ottawa in the near future.

Both last night's appointments, which are temporary, are designed to strengthen the Ottawa office to handle increased work resulting from the war and are regarded as evidence of the importance the United Kingdom government attaches to Mr. MacDonald's post.

OTTAWA, April 1.—(CP)—H. O. McCarty, national gallery director, announced Monday night that a bi-weekly conference of Canadian artists will be held at the national gallery and at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., starting June 26.

JACK KELLY

TONIGHT the Edmonton Athletic Club Juniors battle the Quakers in the fifth and deciding game of the western junior semi-finals at Saskatoon and it appears as if this city's chance of seeing any more hockey this season depends entirely on whether or not the Clubmen win.

On Sunday, Dr. W. G. Hardy, C.A.H.A. official in charge of western Canada playdowns, announced that a sixth game between the Quakers and the Trail-Lethbridge series would be played on neutral ice and that ice would be the Edmonton Arena. Then last night came frantic protests from Lethbridge. Trail joined in the protest, declaring that they had agreed to play on the same ice at Lethbridge.

Such an amazing declaration left Dr. Hardy gasping. If you think it is news when a man bites a dog, then it is nothing less than a major item when a team such as Trail pleads to be allowed to play its most crucial game of the season on the ice of its opponents.

Dr. Hardy felt that since the neutral ice order was chiefly for the benefit of Trail that he couldn't very well force both clubs to come here against their wills. He accordingly gave them permission to finish at Lethbridge but he insisted that they must complete their series in the sixth game Wednesday night even if they have to play until daylight the next morning.

Now then, to get back to our juniors. In the event that the E.A.C. wins tonight, they will play the first two games of the western junior final here on Thursday and Saturday night against the Winnipeg Rangers and then go to the Manitoba capital to finish off the best-of-five series.

If the E.A.C. lose tonight, then it looks like Edmonton fans can take the money they have been saving for playoff tickets, buy them a supply of golf balls and get back to the problem of straightening out slices and making approach shots stick on the greens.

Incidentally the shot-makers are turning out in greater and greater numbers daily at the various Edmonton golf courses. Most fairways are dry and the greens are surprisingly good.

Trooper Bennie Remembers

On the front line of the biggest war in history, Trooper Bennie Tale of the 1st Division Reconnaissance Battalion still found time to remember an anniversary which he has faithfully kept for many years—the death of his brother, Clive Tale, former lightweight champion of Canada.

Before Bennie joined the 1st Battalion of the Edmonton Regiment at the start of the war, he used to drop in at the Edmonton Bulletin sport office regularly to see his brother, Clive, who was a regular contributor to a paragraph in somewhere the next day about Clive. Bennie didn't always have a big word, just a little reminder to the fans of one of the best fighters Canada has yet produced, the big brother who was and still is his hero.

To make certain I got the reminder in time this year, Bennie wrote in English in February and the letter came in right on the dot. He had been transferred from the Edmonton Regiment to the Reconnaissance unit, a scouting outfit that gallops up and down England on motorcycles keeping a watch for any enterprising Nazis that try to slip by. He wrote that he saw Pete McCready in Brighton just before Christmas and that he ran into Harold McManis a few days before he went. Both are in the pink and Harold hasn't a pound of weight.

Clive Tale died March 31, 1933. He had his recorded fighting in 1915 here in Edmonton. He kept on steadily and after he won the Canadian title he eventually went to New York and fought around there in 1923 and 1924. Bennie, for some reason or other, always wanted to be a wrestler, but he was never heavy enough and since he had become a pretty tall boxer through training with Clive, he got nothing but fight offers. While he never claimed to be a successful boxer, he did win a few points of good fights all over western Canada. He had at his heart on reaching a total of 200 fights, a figure he was just a dozen short of, when the war started. The first call for volunteers was no sooner made than Bennie had his name on the line and was in on the biggest fight in history.

Three Splits In Last Game Ruins Bowling Score

ST. PAUL, April 1.—(AP)—Nelson Burton, St. Louis, generally recognized as one of bowling's all-time greats, ended his career in the American Bowling Congress last night with a 1-2-3 record in the final game of his career.

Burton, who won the double at New York in 1927, while paired with Earl Gibson, a 1930 world champion, to take both the singles and all-events titles in the final game of his career.

Burton hit 246, 245 and 200 for a 691 total in the double. He was 601, 186 and 222, as the pair won the 1930 world championship.

The St. Louis ace opened his singles with 235 and 238 and then encountered three wide open splits in the first three frames. He finished 191, but his 300 game score gave him an aggregate of 1,965 and second in the all-events.

After a slow start, which saw O'Leary go into the lead in the first period, he broke through in the second with three goals and added another three in the third to win a Canadian relay.

Royals used their superior weight to win down the right. O'Leary, a right winger, who has been out of action about three weeks, was pronounced by Dr. C. L. Thomas fit to play in the second period of Sunday's game.

The good news: Eddie Weir, a right winger, who has been out of action about three weeks, was pronounced by Dr. C. L. Thomas fit to play in the second period of Sunday's game.

3 GAME ZONES FOR PROVINCE ARE PROVIDED

No License Required For Resident Farmers Within Boundary

Battled by the legislature sitting in committee of the whole assembly on Monday, the consolidated Game Act authorizes the division of the province into three zones, within which resident farmers and ranchers may shoot game birds without a license. There were no limitations on farmers and ranchers in the old act, who were given the power of shooting birds without a license.

One of the three zones established is the area north of the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers. Another is between the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers and the C.P.R. tracks, the northern limit being Calgary, while the third zone is the area south of Calgary.

Under provisions of the act, a farmer or rancher, or any member of their immediate family residing on such land, may hunt game birds without a license within the boundaries of the zone in which he resides.

GRADUAL RESTRICTIONS
George MacLachlan, Ind., Pen. declared that "Surely there should be some limitation on the zone in which a farmer may shoot." In reply, Hon. E. D. Duggan, minister of lands and forests, stated that there were no limitations in the old act, and it was thought best to bring in an act which would gradually restrict the zone.

In his original form, the bill was restricted to a farmer, but it was amended to include a rancher, and a member of his family.

It was argued by L. O. Duke, N.C. Pincher Creek-Cross, that as certain municipalities had obtained permission to hunt game on the hunting of hares, there should be a restriction on the open game season.

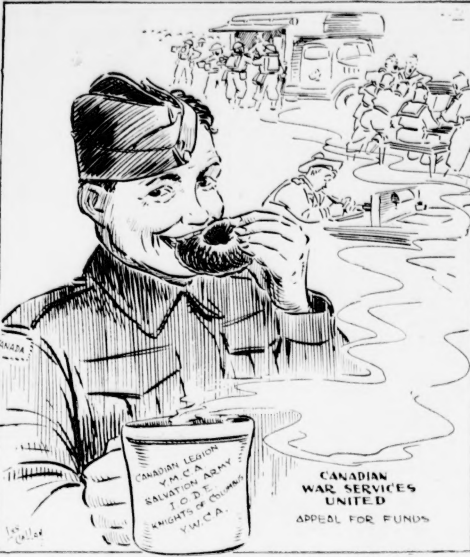

Approval was given by the committee to a section providing that the area north of the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers, which is exclusive of the corporate boundaries of any city, town or village, shall be a zone in which a person shall be entitled to hunt game birds without a license.

GAME GUARDIANS
In reply, Mr. Duggan declared that the game guards were to be appointed by the government, and that they would be paid for their services.

Mr. Anderson, S.C. Calgary, said that as the game guards were to be appointed by the government, it would be necessary to provide for their salaries.

Mr. Duggan, in reply, stated that the game guards would be paid for their services, and that they would be appointed by the government.
